FOREWORD

It is the beginning of the second decade for Cardinal Dougherty High School. In my opinion there could be no finer record of the 1967-68 school year than this book. But then, I could be a little prejudiced; I'm the yearbook's editor-in-chief.

As you page through the book you will notice that we have done something different with our divider pages. The emphasis is on representation, and we hit you with a picture that covers three-fourths of the two-page spread. In each divider we try to carry out the yearbook's theme: renewal.

Our administration section shows the normal influx of new teachers, and the new set of poses that the other teachers came up with, as they do every year.

I was almost run out of town on a rail because of the problems our Graduate Section caused. The '68 graduating class is the largest ever at Dougherty; therefore, we couldn't see how it was possible to fit 2 seniors on a page as we had done in years past. We offered the seniors 3 students to a page with a lot of technical reasons explaining the impossibility of two. Well, they squawked and they threatened 'til it got so that I was afraid to walk down the hall for fear that I would be hit with a bucket of tar and a didy-down pillow. But, thanks to the hard working freshmen, we received enough funds from the patron drive to add more pages to the book.

You will notice an expansion of the Underclassmen Section. We've given the students more pictures and less people in each one; thus getting rid of the problem of finding little Johnny amongst the 50 heads that all look alike. We've also introduced "candid" shots of the underclassmen.

Concerning our section on athletics, as of this writing our Varsity Basketball Team is tied for second place and in contention for the Manhattan Cup. Since the yearbook publisher's deadline is before the playoffs, it is impossible to carry the results in this book. All I can say is—good luck! We were fortunate enough to receive, on time, the results of the Bishop Burke League Bowling Championship. The school is very proud of the varsity bowling team; this is Dougherty's first bowling cham-

The most interesting task of the book was the Student Life Section. We tried, with as many pictures as possible, to show the many phases of a student's life, both academic and social. Candid pictures have been introduced, and believe it or not, a page featuring my cartoons that have appeared in the SPOTLIGHT, and my beloved counterpart, ERNIE.

I suppose I've reached the point where I'm supposed to give my sincere thanks and heartfelt gratitude to all of the tireless, patient and hard working persons who made this book possible. When I accepted this job I promised myself that I would never print such "corn". But now that the year is over I feel differently about this. I couldn't possibly conceal my gratitude from such persons as Paul Piciulo; he really surprised me with all the work he did. I didn't think he had it in him. Paul Syracuse—the teachers are still angry at him. But he was determined to keep pestering them until he got every one of their interviews. I mustn't forget to thank Jim Guerra. Without his pestering, badgering and complaining, we'd be weeks behind our deadlines. We'd do the work just to get him off our backs! And now it's time to put the spotlight on our advisor, Fr. Levesque, that little guy with the funny waddle. I couldn't begin to thank him for his deep concern in our effort, giving up his time, coming up with simple solutions to our unsolvable problems, pointing out details that I had never given a thought to, typing 'til 3 A.M. and tackling the jobs that he promised himself at the beginning of the year he would never touch. Thank you, father.

Of the 4 yearbooks I own, this book will bring back the fondest memories; it is a part of me, now. I hope, in years to come, that when you come across this big, dusty green book, you will open it, page through it, linger here and there, and smile. I'll even go so far as to hope that you might even shed a tear. And when you're married and have grandchildren, if any of them happen to be on the staff of their school yearbook, lend them this book for a reference. I'd appreciate it.

THOMAS CRONIN

A member of the class of 1968, Thomas Cronin met with an unfortunate accident while tobogganing, December 31, 1966. After spending several months in a coma, Tom has recovered sufficiently to return to his family. Partial paralysis has forced him to discontinue his studies, but the ties with Dougherty have been maintained by several of his classmates who visit him and report on his progress. The graduating class of 1968 has not forgotten Tom and extends to him every wish for a complete and rapid rehabilitation.

This year our Varsity basketball team's performance was outstanding. Through the leadership of Frank Swiatek and with hours of diligent practice they finished the season with an impressive record of 14 wins, 4 losses. Our senior starting five: Dave Anderson, Roman Burdzy, Mike McManus, Pat Abulone, and Riley McDonough led the Cards to victory time and again.

As of this writing, the Cards are on their way to the Manhattan Cup playoffs. We wish them the best of luck, and we regret that we cannot cover the results of their efforts.

THIS YEAR, TOO.

The outside world may sometimes look bleak. But the young men who took full advantage of the educational opportunities offered at Cardinal Dougherty need not face the future with wariness or fear. They know they have been prepared mentally, physically and spiritually to approach, with confidence, the trials and conflicts that will be set before them.
